URORA INVITES YOU TO OBSERVE LIFE.

The Junior Class of Manchester College presents to you the 1944 Aurora . . . Student life Under the Oaks on our campus portrayed by pictures and reminiscences. Those of us who had the good fortune of experiencing this life will understand what is written. We can feel the spirit that pervades over the campus, always challenging our best efforts and highest aspirations. We hope these pages will bring back happy and enjoyable memories, which will grow dearer as the years go by.

UNDER THE OAKS

M

N

ORTH MANCHESTER, INDIANA _____

UNDER THE OAKS is Manchester College, the friendly and wholesome place in which we spend four of our most exciting and formative years. Her students and faculty are brought together for learning, working, socializing and fun. We note the changes that are brought about in our majestic oaks with every change of the season. So also do the students' lives and activities change. We think of our Freshman days when fresh on the campus we almost trembled at the sight of a professor. But we soon learned that the professors were human after all and were more anxious to make us feel at home than to force knowledge on us. The faculty did everything possible to effect our orientation, even to the extent of inviting us to their homes for informal get-togethers. All of this soon broke down the barriers and a friendly relationship developed. Under these conditions our studies became interesting and we tried to do our best. As we went along we began to catch what must be the Manchester spirit. It was not something we read out of our textbooks, but something that developed by association. We were being changed to meet life squarely and with convictions. With every change in the Oaks came new and varied activities for us, which broadened our interests and knowledge. The Aurora will unfold the branches that make up the mighty oak, Manchester.

THE FACULTY

AND STUDENTS

IN THEIR

ACTIVITIES

The Administration of Manchester College is carried on by both faculty and students, with the aim of directing student life and activities and collaborating to produce a better whole. Through this time of change, requiring many adjustments to the war, the administrators of Manchester have remained alert to the problems and needs of the students. The student council performs as an instrument of democracy, uniting all of the interest groups on the campus. The student administration of the men's dormitory and the student administration of the women's dormitory have the responsibility of enforcing cooperative living in each dormitory. Cooperation and consideration of each other are essential in the production of a pleasant atmosphere and happy life for all concerned.

On November 8, 1941, the students and friends of Manchester witnessed the inauguration of Dr. Vernon Franklin Schwalm as president of Manchester College. Dr. Schwalm accepted the honor with this response: "Keenly aware of the heavy responsibility it involves, and deeply appreciative of the high privilege it affords, I accept the Presidency of Manchester College, and pledge you my every effort, as God gives me grace, to uphold its best ideals and traditions, and to promote its growth and usefulness." A Manchester product, Dr. Schwalm graduated from Manchester in 1913. After taking his master's degree at the University of Chicago, he returned to Manchester to become head of the history department. Two years later he became dean of the college in which capacity he continued until called to McPherson College in 1927. Dr. Schwalm has fulfilled his pledge to promote the growth and usefulness of Manchester College. His prophetic instinct and his determination to keep Manchester strong make him a truly great leader.

dean carl w. holl

During the fall term this year, Dr. Holl was only on the campus Saturday afternoons. Ball State was his headquarters, for he was borrowed by them to teach a semester of chemistry to soldiers stationed there. From this experience, Dean Holl brought back new ideas and suggestions for Manchester. By actually being a part of Ball State's school system, he learned their practices, and so was able to analyze in what way M. C. has superior methods and also where improvement could be made. His close contact with the service men gave him a keener insight into their problems. No matter if you have problems concerning your course of study, the draft, some social function, or are faced with any of the multitudinous questions of college students, or if you just want to have a good chat, the Dean welcomes you with that genial smile backed by sound and scientific advice. He keeps aware of student problems, needs, and viewpoints. He is a good stabilizer during these days of uneasiness.

STUDENT PRESIDENT

Friendly and helpful to one and all; that is our student body president, Howdy. He seems to be carefree with nary a worry, for he takes everything in his stride and doesn't let anything get him down. Howard hails from Berne, Indiana, where he developed the typical characteristic of this Swiss community, with their love for singing and music in general, their simple life and firm faith. In high school, he participated in a variety of activities, including athletics and musical organizations, particularly those in which he exercised his tenor voice. He also exercised his leadership in the capacity of president of his class for three years. Howdy has pursued the same type of extra-curricular activities here at Manchester, for he has been in both band and orchestra, the choirs, and was president of his sophomore class, besides serving on many committees. His capable leadership and efficiency in carrying on his responsibilities are recognized by students and faculty members alike.

STUDENT COUNCIL

There is no student organization that has more fingers in more pies than the Student Council. To a casual outsider the group is hardly more than a name, for it operates with unparalleled subtlety—chiefly through the medium of committees. To its members the Council is a device by which the impossible is often achieved. In the eyes of the faculty it probably takes the shape of a choir of spoiled brats, always clamoring for something. To the Council have fallen unnumbered small duties and a few of great importance. For instance, Homecoming week-end was largely in its hands, both the planning and execution. Research was done on the question of flying the flag at night in time of war; and somewhere along the line the discussion turned to the frayed condition of the flag on the tower, with the result that the school bought a new one. The Council stood strongly behind the Oaks as it passed through the idea stage and was called on now and then to elect student members to the grill committee. Its Monday night meetings may sound like sewing circles, but they produce.

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Intermingle two hundred co-eds, each exercising her individuality and native mannerisms, and the new urgent requirement is a local government. Our dorm government consists of a Council, which appoints proctors to uphold us when we are disturbed by our neighbors and who hold us up if we forget that we have neighbors. Occasionally peaceful slumber is shattered by a fire gong. Frequent room inspections suggest regular domestic exercise. Ten o'clock gang feeds still consist of appetites and chatter. The high-light of the year was a swell Christmas party featuring an amateur hour with Santa Claus as master of ceremonies. There was joy in sending gifts of books and games to Japanese relocation camps. There is a sympathetic warmth of good feeling circulating from the laundry room to the attic. Yes, "We Love Life" in Oakwood Hall.

MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT

You ask "What was dorm life like at Blokewood in 1943-1944? Is it still as it was back then?"

Well, you see, it's this way . . .

Fundamentally and materially it hasn't changed; however, figuratively there has been a noticeable difference from the days of old because statistics bear witness to the fact that there was no waiting list for admittance this year. Nor did the directory at any time during the year show a full house. But, there were a few boys scattered from floor to floor who were sufficient in number to lend proof to the age old adage "Boys will be boys."

And what were the fundamental and material likenesses? Surely you've long since guessed that there are the same halls, rooms, two-minute morning rising bells, harmony sessions in the showers, full dress showers from second and third story windows, noise (unusually so at times), bull sessions, and even endless hours of study and concentration; . . . or what do your powers of recollection suggest?

The number in our student body is less this year than in previous years because of circumstances beyond our control. This does not mean less school spirit, but rather a greater contribution by each individual toward keeping Manchester strong. There are evidences on every hand of the determination of this reduced group to carry on for Manchester during the emergency. We note with pride the willingness of students to accept our accelerated program. This means harder work, longer hours, less recreation, less vacation, less butter, less sugar, no intercollegiate games, fewer trips home and many other inconveniences. We predict that the students of Manchester in this crisis will face the problems of the world with a self-reliance that will add to their glory as well as to that of their Alma Mater.

Seniors! Did someone say "Seniors"? Yes, they did . . . and here we are. For four long years we've awaited this time, but now we're not so sure how eager we are to graduate. Although the draft has depleted our class of its quota of boys, we carried on and in the process have collected scads of memories which will soon be taken with us to other places, near and far. We'll remember ditch day, the gang, formal banquets, the opening of the grill and commencement. These are but a few of the things that have made our college life something to cherish. Underclassmen, it's up to you to carry on and keep M. C. the fine place it is.

The process whereby some fifty bouncing babies of the crop of 1923 arrived at their present eminence as members of the Manchester Junior Class is a painful and remarkable one. What countless trials we passed through; what heartbreaking griefs over the first black eye or comic valentine; what transports of joy over the first roller skates, will likely never be set down in the tablets of history. What bewilderment we experienced on first arriving at Manchester to find all our preconceived ideas of college entirely wrong; what joys we felt when we found that college, after all, was much better than we had dreamed. These are but memories. But now we have arrived, having traveled through these many vicissitudes, at our present happy status as Juniors.⁴ We have been here long enough to know our way about, and the day when we must leave our college is still in the future. Before that day comes we shall have added other joys to our list of memories; the Valentine queen, the Junior-Senior reception, choosing the student prexy, and last but not least, the AURORA. We feel that nobody in the world can match for happiness the joy of being a Junior at Manchester.

Upperclassmen at last! That was our dream which, as rhinies, seemed eternities away. We've put our feet forward and, believe it or not, they came down on solid ground. Though our forces have dwindled considerably, particularly the stronger (?) sex, our handicap has not been too great. Now the girls are "taking over", and quite efficiently, too. The year has brought the general round of events . . . clubs, class meetings, banquets, concerts, and the weiner roast at Prof. Halladay's; and though we won't all be back next year you can be sure we will carry the spirit of Manchester wherever we go.

Although teeming with energy, our first few days at Manchester College were nervous ones for us, the class of '47. Finding within the first week that our class out-numbered any of the upper classes, we refused to grovel at their command. Yet with their guidance and example we became more unified and soon lost most of our typical Rhinie greenness. Our girls went without benefit of initiation, while the fellows managed to more than hold their own against extreme college "welcomings" by out-numbering their opponents. We are the class of '47. Our hopes and aspirations are, even after one year in college, still mainly unrealized, but that just leaves more to be attained in our three remaining years!

No matter what walk of life we may follow, we must learn to express ourselves as fluently as possible and to the point. This is acquired through the humanities. The development of the fine arts is carried in the art department and music department; the latter includes a variety of talents with singing and instrumental ability outlets. The use of language is developed through foreign languages, speech, dramatics, journalism, and the varied selections of reading material in the library. The arts and languages contribute more to a culturally well-rounded life than any two other factors. It is great music, art, and literature of all times that give us a foundation for modern thought. Not everybody has talents in all of the arts nor can master other languages, but we can develop appreciation for them and find them fascinating.

The third floor of the library is more than an obscure garret; it's an active department of Manchester College. With the aid of drawing boards, T-squares, charcoal, clay, plaster-of-paris, the spinning wheel, looms, and other equipment, imaginative minds and nimble fingers are busy planning, drafting, creating, and evaluating ever new and original compositions. Wit and originality are never lacking where Professor Allen reigns, even though punctuality often is. The art department serves as a pleasant and profitable haven of refuge after a long day of concentration. A fascinating new piece of equipment has been added to the department just this year—a big four-treadle loom made of beautiful walnut. And so the art department continues to grow bigger and better!

Music for morale, music for worship, music for fun; all imply music for pleasure to the M. C. mind. But pleasure in listening can be only half as great as pleasure in producing. An important lesson in co-operation lies in subduing personal individuality for the good of the whole tonal product. Due to wartime restrictions the large musical organizations have been forced to abandon traditional practices, and quartets have been disbanded entirely. However, college orchestra, band, and the choirs still reign supreme in their respective third floor domain, and music majors are still displaying their genius in yearly recitals.

BAND

There is the sound of drums in the air, the rhythm of musicians' marching feet, the satisfying sight of orderly files and ranks. This is a word picture of the Manchester Marching Band. At the Homecoming game the band members showed an excellent result of many hours' rehearsing under the watchful eye of Dr. Flueckiger and the careful leading of the drum major, Bob Brennan. Before the game, the band members were hard at work clearing the weeds from the football field. All earned blisters and sore backs, and the satisfaction that comes from doing something worthwhile. The end of the first term of school saw ear muffs and wool scarfs, used during the cold days of marching in late fall, tucked away and members dutifully found their places behind big folios containing many famous selections from the world's musical literature. The careful preparation of these numbers was in anticipation of the concerts to be given during the year.

THE COLLEGE ORCHESTRA AND CIVIC SYMPHONY

Quoth Webster, "Orchestra. A band of players using varied instruments, especially those of the viol group." Quoth M. C., "Orchestra. A group of musicians who are reasonably skilled and remarkably enthusiastic, using instruments ranging from the contra-bassoon, through the stringed and unstringed instruments, to a piccolo, and using them expressively, locally conducted by S. L. F., and frequently producing music." This year, the college orchestra and the civic symphony combined to present three very successful concerts. But orchestras don't just give concerts over night. Each Monday, at 6:45, assorted individuals dragged miscellaneous instruments up five flights of stairs; each Monday at 9:15, miscellaneous individuals dragged assorted instruments down five flights of stairs. The Little Symphony also trudged up and down each Thursday afternoon. Enthusiastic love of music and an exhaustless sense of humor, plus a few boxes of vitamin pills, enabled the members of the group to present really exquisite music. This is orchestra, Manchester style.

CHAPEL CHOIR

Wednesday morning—thirty-four individuals blended into one whole—thirty-four students who have dropped their separate identities—thirty-four singers who have forgotten their worries and “busy-ness” to present an inspiration in music to the student body; this is our Chapel Choir. The story behind the song is one of variety. The two hours of weekly practice under Professor Halladay’s genial and capable direction and the student direction of Miss Helen Cook, are mixed with the ingredients of singing and listening, concentration and relaxation, serious moments and laughter. The production of a weighty Russian sacred number, a solemn Latin chant, a sturdy hymn, a light-hearted English madrigal, or a pulse-throbbing negro spiritual contain varying amounts of these ingredients.

CANTILENA CHOIR

It's Monday afternoon, or maybe Thursday. From the band room the familiar notes of the theme song begin softly, gradually crescendo and then quietly diminuendo again under the guidance of Dr. Flueckiger's hand as the Women's Cantilena Choir begins practicing. Songs for all seasons of the year—Christmas carols, Easter hymns, spirituals, lively folk songs and quiet church music, all of these are included in the repertoire of the choir plus the fun, music appreciation and spirit of co-operation that comes as a part of singing and working together.

ORATORY

To Manchester College came the privilege of entertaining this year's Oratorical contest and as usual we had entries in both divisions. In the women's division, Emma Lou Sailors again demonstrated her versatility with her winning oration, "Black Logic", a plea for race toleration. Keith Hoover, with his oration "The Land America Forgot", was our representative in the men's division.

Once again the name of Ruby Frantz Rhoades comes to the foreground as a winner among Manchester's orators. Winning first place in the State Peace Oratorical Contest with her oration, "Bag of Beans", her manuscript was submitted to the national contest where it took third place.

DEBATE

War has had its effect on Manchester's debating activities. In spite of numerous inquiries and requests that it be continued, the Manchester tournament has been suspended for the duration. Nevertheless, a limited program was continued in the form of debates with nearby colleges and a three-way tournament was held on the campus March 17 with Goshen, Anderson and Manchester participating.

"Resolved: That Manchester College shall adopt the grades of satisfactory and unsatisfactory only," was the intramural debate question for this year. Under the direction of Miss Ogla Bendsen, these enthusiasts carried on a lively contest.

LIBRARY STAFF

With a newly decorated and furnished library, the pleasure of being a student librarian has greatly increased. In order to perfect their efficiency the twenty-four staff members, under the direction of Miss Forney, meet every other Thursday evening. The programs consist of talks, reviews of recent books, and discussions of the problems of the profession (as they occur on our campus), and in order to keep up morale after daily listening to patrons' complaints, the group holds an occasional party in Elizabeth Hall. It has been the aim of the library staff this year to create in our library a quiet and pleasant atmosphere for study and efficiently to find information for the students and faculty members.

LINCOLN ADELPHIA

Coming into contact with life, Manchester style, for the first time, has been fun for all of this year's freshman class. The Lincoln Adelpia Literary society, under the guidance of Miss DeJong, has helped even our parties, crazy and formal . . . with everyone doing something regardless of sputterings and stutterings. May the contribution of this year's Lincoln Adelpia live on!

MATHEA RHETORIA

Variety and quality have been the keynotes of this year's Mathea-Rhetoria meetings. Working with Prof. Allen, the committees have planned not only the traditional variety of programs, but they have also introduced many distinctive ideas. An impressive candle-lighting service installed the fall term officers. Another high-spot was the Christmas program, when "The Story of the Other Wise Man" was given in pantomime. We were thrilled and chilled by a radio presentation of Poe's "Fall of the House of Usher"—(with sound effects). New Cicero's and Kreisler's were brought to light in the speeches and musical numbers given by the members. Committee members have combined business with pleasure in the planning sessions and extra hours spent in "getting things set". All in all, this year's Mathea-Rhetoria has maintained the high standards of years past.

PHILOMANETA

Speakers, skates, amateur hours, banquets, and impromptus . . . it's Philomaneta Literary Society, of course. Thanks to the leadership of Prof. Conkling and the super co-operation of all members, we can close the books on a really successful year. We've demonstrated our super talents, we have learned what college is all about and now we are ready to become well oriented sophomores. Philomaneta has completed her task . . . until next year.

AURORA STAFF

It is needless to describe the work, or lack of work as the case may be, done by the Aurora staff. You can judge for yourself by this production; but in spite of its few minor defects (which someone is certain to discover), we hope that this book will help you keep the memories of the high lights of your years here Under the Oaks, and we know that for us every page will also carry some memory of its production.

OAK LEAVES

Amid the surroundings of coke bottles, broken down chairs, a paper-strewn floor, knick-knacks varying from huarachies to a toy drum, and an atmosphere reeking with the last remains of some unfortunate rat imprisoned in the wall, come forth the masterpieces of striving young writers. In spite of the fact that Cupid snatched away last year's editor, Dorothy Lindegren, and the staff for the present year has been built practically from scratch, the traditional Oak Leaves has continued to carry on. In the face of seemingly insurmountable handicaps, the paper has been printed regularly each week (almost always on time).

FRENCH AND SPANISH

Undoubtedly in the course of a year's time at Manchester, you've heard some strange chatter or fond words of foreign descent. Senor F. E. Reed heads the romance language department and Monsieur M. C. Morris assists by teaching one French class. Prof. Reed has lived for a short time in both France and Mexico and on occasion will tell about the people, their customs, and their food. How the mouth does water when he so carefully and precisely describes such foreign dishes as compote de pommes, tortillas and frijoles. Romance languages with their distinctive rhythm and beauty are more than ever becoming very important. Spanish and French speaking peoples are knitting themselves more closely to the United States by our mutual interests during war time and no doubt some of Manchester's young Frenchmen and Spaniards will use their knowledge of these languages in a very helpful way in post-war work. "A man who is ignorant of foreign languages, is ignorant of his own." Goethe.

GERMAN

Although German is considered by some people as one of the most difficult to learn of the modern languages, with the help and guidance of Professor M. C. Morris many brave souls at M. C. have struggled through it. Their reasons for taking it are various. Some want the ability to speak and read another language, others want to learn more of the literature, cultures and background of another civilization, still other students are interested in science of medicine. And perhaps a few were intrigued by the little mustache Prof. Morris had at the beginning of the year. As proof of their ability to speak German, the classes effectively presented to the chapel the "Totentanz Spiel" or "Dance of Death", an adaptation from the original medieval morality play.

TRI ALPHA

The 1943-44 season was another great triumph for Tri-Alpha. On the board for these ardent Thespians was the production of Louisa May Alcott's "Little Women". Another major project undertaken was the redecoration in chartreuse and navy blue of the Tri-Alpha room. Perhaps it was the freshmen, who were admitted to membership for the first time this year, that imbued Tri-Alpha with its vivacious spirit. Under the competent directing and leadership of Mrs. Wampler another successful year of Tri-Alpha activities becomes history, leaving pleasant memories of "Little Women", paint brushes, white elephant gifts, initiation skits, and "The play's the thing!"

LITTLE WOMEN

The Tri-Alpha production of "Little Women" was presented to a formally attired audience on Saturday evening, January the fifteenth. This work by Louisa May Alcott has remained for several generations the most popular juvenile novel written by an American. Marmee and Father March, the parents of the little women, played by Ruthe Erbaugh and Herbert Flory, bind the four daughters into one triumphant family. The other characters are romping tomboy Jo, portrayed by Matha Thompson; domestic-minded Meg, acted by Maurine Miller; artistic Amy, played by Lorabel Ferverda; and sweet Beth, played by Erna Pottenger; together with Aunt March (Helen Myers), John Brooke (Gordon Shull), Lauri (Don Roberts), and Professor Bhaer (Ray Hoover). The lives of this family are woven into the delightful tale of "Little Women".

Social science helps one and all to get the broad aspect of getting along in this world. Our modern civilization still involves those fundamental studies of religion, history and social and personal adjustments. Here we find material knowledge and welfare with political science; the structure of man's mind and the causes of his behavior are integrated with his social development. Through a

F. T. A., thirty-five strong, indulged in a great variety of programs at their traditional Friday night meetings. There were teachers' conventions, socials, group singing, panel discussions of how and how not to apply for a job, projects, and guest speakers. There was a great interest in the National Education Association Journals and leaflets. Student teaching problems were brought up and the critic teachers helped to enlighten these enthusiastic novices. These were the activities of the Otho Winger Chapter of the Future Teachers of America.

ELEMENTARY CLUB

"Now, find a new partner and talk about your favorite teacher until the music stops." Yes, it's Elementary club, starting the year with a get-acquainted party. Throughout the year, on every other Friday evening, the future "School marms" meet to cultivate their professional qualities and interests through Elementary Club. Remembering, of course, that a sense of humor and a capacity for fun are two of a teacher's most valuable traits, the club presents a series of programs to prepare its members for their chosen profession. Hints on the good and bad in teacher's attire, plus the project of painting toys and dressing dolls for the Mission Chapel children are good examples of what enabled its members to enjoy the all-round activities of the Elementary Club.

PSYCHOLOGY

How did he "get that way"? Or, did you ever consider the possibility that perhaps you are just a little abnormal yourself? Why is it that some people are in attendance here at Manchester College while others are confined to the insane asylum at Logansport? Ask the enlightened psych student! Someone has said that life is "just one adjustment after another." Students may not succeed in eliminating quite all of their undesirable habits in their persistent attempts to discover why people adjust the way they do, but many have unearthed a down-to-earth philosophy of life.

BUSINESS CLUB

The program account of the Business Club includes talks, mock court procedures, the showing of films, and demonstrations on how to use the adding machines, calculators, comptometers, and also the techniques of taking shorthand. Miss Johnson gave a talk telling of her experiences in Chicago this past summer studying court reporting. Mr. Clay Syler enlightened us on the business trends of today. He advised the club that students of Manchester College should keep on with their work even though a war is now being fought. The other interest included to close and balance this account was expressed in group singing, hay-rides and parties.

STUDENT CHRISTIAN UNION

There is now a movement all over the world and especially in the North and South American countries known as the Student Christian movement, which vitally concerns the Christian students on every college campus. Our college has added another link in this chain of brotherhood with the Student Christian Union. This organization is aptly named a union, because it has attempted to bring all the students together into five commissions, so that the diversified religious needs and interests of the students might be fulfilled. Studying such peace organizations as the FOR and service committees, reliving work camp experiences, sharing their musical talents and thinking with the friends at the Peabody home; taking Christmas cheer to some who have just newly come to this community, and trying to visualize the life of a missionary from those who know, have been the challenges given to those who belong to the commission known as Service at Home and Abroad. The commission of Individual Christian Living attempts to deal with the personal and thought-provoking problems of immortality, prayer, honesty, and tolerance. For those who are interested in the intricacies of the various phases of church activity and of the organization of the church, there is the Church Leadership Commission.

Another commission which tries to put into practice what is discussed in a theoretical manner is the Peace and Reconstruction group, which has sponsored drives to obtain relief money for the acute famines in India and China, and studied about the cause of war and the plans for a post-war world. Some of their activities have been to roll bandages for the Castaner project in Puerto Rico, and they have revived the issues of race relations. The Student Ministers have endeavored to encourage those who would like to enter the ministry for their life vocation. They substitute in filling pulpits and analyze themselves as well as the profession of the ministry.

These five commissions which comprise the Student Christian Union of Manchester College, attempt to integrate the religious life of the student to help him draw closer to his brother in a world wide fellowship of love and union with God.

"U" CABINET

When the "General Boards" of the religious life of Manchester College meet in weekly conference on Tuesday evening, almost any subject pertaining to the religious activities on the campus is apt to be up for discussion. For with the incorporation of all the religious activities into the Student Christian Union, the "U" cabinet has become the policy making agency for all the newly organized commissions. Problems and activities ranging from giving to war relief to welcoming the freshmen, formerly taken care of by whatever group thought of it, are coordinated by this group of campus leaders interested in helping Manchester students truly live religion.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

Under the impetus of world-wide chaotic conditions, the International Club found it a special challenge to live up to its name this year. Studying the causes of war, methods of maintaining international goodwill and harmony, the relief program under the newly organized UNRRA, and the effects of war on some of the minority groups in America were included in the bi-monthly programs. In December the club sponsored a lecture by Dr. C. J. Hambro, President of the League of Nations Assembly and the Norwegian Parliament. The social side of the club was highlighted by the hayride, with guests, campfire, eats, and story-telling. And so another successful year can be chalked up for Manchester's International Club.

TRAINING UNIT

During the summer of 1943, seventy selected persons from the Civilian Public Service camps, plus a number of regularly enrolled summer students participated in a very intensive ten week program of training for relief and reconstruction. In addition to area courses on Contemporary Asia and Contemporary Europe, which were taught by Dr. Keim and Dr. Cordier, respectively, courses were given in the field of Problems of Reconstruction, Social Work and Relief Administration. The program was rich, varied, and intensive. A wealth of experience was brought to the campus by such men as Clarence Pickett, Executive Secretary of the American Friends Service Committee; Dr. John W. Nason, President of Swarthmore College; Dr. Robert Hoppock, Professor of Guidance, New York University; Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former president of Antioch College, and chairman of TVA; and Professor Ammon Swope, of Purdue University. Those who brought a rich pattern of experience in the frontiers of actual relief work in various parts of the world were John Barwick, Brethren Service Committee representative in war prisoner work in England; Howard Sollenberger, relief worker in China and Puerto Rico; Dr. Ernest Miller, President of Goshen College, relief worker with Near East after the last World War; Dr. M. C. Lehman, relief commissioner to Germany and Poland; Howard Kershner, the director of Friends' European relief for the last decade.

In the field of social work, significant contributions were made by Professor Chester Bower, Professor of Social Group Work, Western Reserve University; Professor John L. Gillin, Chairman of the Department of Sociology of the University of Wisconsin; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gustafson, graduates of Western Reserve University School of Applied Social Science; and Professor Arthur Swift, of Union Theological Seminary. Dr. Lucille Carmen and Miss Grace Eshelman contributed to the understanding of the medical and health aspects of relief work, while Mrs. J. Lloyd Spaulding did effective work in conducting a cooking school. Members of the Elgin Staff, of the Bethany Seminary Staff, and President Paul Bowman, of Bridge-water College, brought the group a rich background of Christian Interpretation. Professor O. W. Neher did effective work in directing the construction group. Other interest groups were those covering such fields as auto mechanics, cooking, health and sanitation, town and country planning, and the care of clothing. Nearly all the members of the regular summer teaching staff contributed in one way or another to the success of the summer.

All of the students and the faculty associated with the program found the summer's experience deeply satisfying in the volume and quality of the work covered, and in the broad perspective and the rich fellowship gained.

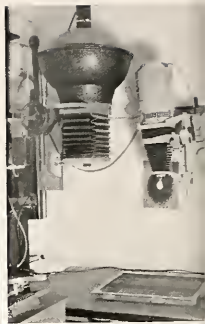

All science is a search for truth. Science seeks the underlying principles upon which facts are developed in connecting animal and plant life and substance. "The work of science is to substitute facts for appearances, and demonstrations for impressions." — Ruskin. In addition to studying scientific facts in these courses the student learns the practical applications which are in evidence in daily life. By this means of interpreting the world about us we are able to adjust ourselves more easily to our environment. Through an understanding of the forces, phenomena, processes, materials and living things that interact to produce our world, we can work together more intelligently, sympathetically and profitably.

Always a busy place, the Physics Department has seen increased activity during the past year. Dr. C. S. Morris has had charge of his usual physics and physical science classes, and has added the responsibility of the classes in mathematics. The third floor physics department and connecting classrooms and laboratories has been the scene of everything from studies of astronomy, light, electricity, radio, to discussions and classes in calculus, theory of equation, and trigonometry. Dr. Morris also supervises the photography lab which takes care of all Aurora pictures and private photographs. Those interested in radio work find time to spend many hours in the department's radio lab; although some of their services have been suspended for the duration. The lighting effects for "Little Women" and other productions are also a sample of the ingenuity radiating from the department.

HOOSIER HIKING CLUB

"This Sunday afternoon at two o'clock there will be a hike—." With this familiar announcement all dreams of an afternoon siesta are gone; but for Hoosier Hiking Club members an invigorating hike is a more than welcome substitution. Hoosier Hiking Club had dedicated itself to the study of nature, so most of its activities center around the great out-of-doors; observing tracks in the snow and the sparkling snowflakes themselves . . . watching birds taking their waking-up exercises on a spring morning and their restless activity on a sunny winter afternoon . . . hunting for fossils in the gravel pit . . . hiking in the rain . . . viewing movies and listening to talks on wild life . . . enjoying box lunches in nature's vast dining room.

This is an age of substitutes. This year's Science Club was no exception. We substituted women for men on our executive council, we largely replaced imported programs with local talent, and we have had to get along with a smaller organization. However, quality is one item that has remained unchanged. The Science Club is an organization for the benefit of all students in the science departments. We have the Biology Department, the Chemistry and the Physics Departments represented in our club. The aim of the club is not only to serve as a social contact for the departments but also to present some worthwhile programs, and we succeeded in both.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

During the year the Home Economics Club made fifty kimonos which were sent to the Kentucky Frontier Nurses' Corps. Of course, members are often at work making clothes for themselves, nor do they overlook other fundamentals of homemaking. "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," is a familiar quotation, and though it isn't the primary reason for the practice in cooking that they get, it might well be a good one. A number of teas were held throughout the year, thus giving the majority of the girls experience in entertaining and planning of these social functions. Other meetings included discussions on textiles, interior decorating, and other improvements which can be made in and around the home. Several of the students with literary inclinations took over "News and Views", the state home economics magazine, and presented a bright Christmas issue.

The Home Economics club cabinet is not unlike other cabinets on M. C.'s campus, for it seems to have innumerable problems and conflicts that cause overtime meetings and no end of indecision. Through the leadership of Virginia Hopper the first half of the year and Helen Smith the last half, we like to think these many discussions and debates helped to make our club a greater success. A special feature sponsored by the out-going cabinet was a dinner given in the home ec. living-dining room for the new cabinet. After all, home ec. cabinet must show its adeptness in the culinary arts, even if they do entertain only themselves and their successors.

And for the foods lab: blue kitchen, red kitchen, or green kitchen—which will you have? Each has its virtues, but red kitchen fans will “root” for their special type of unit set-up. Really, the only appreciable difference in these unit kitchens is the color scheme—which proves that some girls have a better liking for red than they do blue—and vice versa. No difference, the aroma of delicious pastries, cakes, and meats evolve from each kitchen, in those enlightening lab periods; we warn you, tho, the first attempts may not be the products of experts.

"Do we have to make a dress without using a pattern, and actually plan to wear it?" "And do we have to make up an original dress pattern?" "Horrors! I'll never be able to do it!" But at the end of the year everyone has come through with flying colors (not without some struggles and "taking out" however) and they even say it wasn't hard at all—not very, anyway. New electric sewing machines, fitting rooms, and recently improved laboratory rooms all contribute to make Manchester's clothing department a most desirable place in which to work.

Marketing, cleaning, dish-washing, and cooking each make up a part of the daily living at the Home Management House. If it's a real experience one wants, only a term at said house makes one feel like a veteran. But not to be forgotten is the most desirable "homey atmosphere" of the cozy fireplace, easy chairs, and real-for-sure home appliances. After existing in dorm rooms a while, a term in the home management house makes one appreciate the virtues of a real home. We even hope to make it more authentic sometime!

Because of the lack of manpower on the campus, Manchester's physical education program has been considerably curtailed this year. Undoubtedly we have missed most of the thrill and excitement of inter-collegiate competition. However, besides regular gym classes, intramural athletics has amply provided the recreation and relaxation so much needed in our accelerated program as well as insured the students' physical fitness. These less auspicious activities have also proven an excellent outlet for the capabilities of those less skilled sports and have increased their interest and cooperation. All in all, the physical education program has proven valuable and satisfying.

FOOTBALL—HOMECOMING

October 30, Homecoming Day, although lacking in some activities displayed during previous years, did not lack the annual football brawl or student cooperation and interest. The two intramural outfits, the Blues and the Golds, captained by Jim Weaver and Ray Hoover, respectively, staged a "rough and tumble" six-man grid tussle in Kenapocomoco stadium employing practically all the customary football tactics with a final upset score of 40-13 registered in favor of the Blues, who were paced by Jim Weaver and Lorin Burt. Kenapocomoco field received its first and only touch of the cleats during the year not from the usual black and gold pre-war teams, but from two all-star groups selected as the pick of the crop from the men's gym classes. The teams were coached by Lyle Barber, student athletic director. For the first time, six-man football, a modification of the usual grid sport, was played on Manchester's gridiron. This slightly different game created unusual enthusiasm on the part of the student body who divided in favor of the Spartan Blues or the Manchester Golds.

BASKETBALL

Like all other sports during wartime, the basketball was discarded for the "priorities" on the Manchester campus as well as on those of other small Indiana colleges who formerly served as Black and Gold competition. However, the game received good support on an intramural basis and an independent squad received tutoring from the athletic director, Lyle Barber. The team played a schedule with independent clubs from neighboring towns and colleges with considerable success. Following a slow start, the quintette hit a pace which bowled over all opposition including a brilliant Chicago Bethany aggregation.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Women's sports! Phys. Ed. . . . that sounds better. Or it's just plain "gym." At eight-thirty, one, two, three or four o'clock, girls may be seen making their way out to the girls' gym; some with towels flung over their arms, some with white gym suits concealed beneath their coats, and others with slacks protruding. The girls work off vim and vitality by playing badminton, deck tennis, basketball, volleyball, or any of the other old faithfuls. Forgotten locker combinations or hoping the showers are cold are some of the familiar strains.

MEN'S SPORTS

With inter-collegiate sports competition eliminated this year, Manchester's physical education program was confined to a strict intramural set-up. With the boys' gym classes serving as a nucleus for intramural man-power, a six-man football tourney was started. The eight teams in this tournament were the Cornhuskers, Boilermakers, Wolverines, Wildcats, Sooners, Hoosiers, and Spartan Jrs., in the order of the final standings.

Keever, Gibson, Arnold, Souder, Weaver, Burt.

Shull, Gershman, Garber, Gnatcy.

TENNIS CHAMPIONS

At the beginning of the year, enthusiasm for the game of tennis swept the whole campus. Free periods in the morning, afternoon, and evening would find many a racquet busy out on the courts in back of Oakwood Hall. A women's tournament was organized, in which there was really keen competition. Helen Shull emerged victorious.

FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

An intra-mural six-man football tournament was staged by the boys in the gym classes this fall. From these teams two all-star teams were picked, and they had an exhibition game. The winners of the tournament, the Cornhuskers, won the six games that they played.

W. A. A.

The Women's Athletic Association is one of the outstanding organizations on the campus. Since the first rousing, all-school party, which was so appropriately called the Konfusion Karnival, the W. A. A. has provided entertainment every week in the form of skating, basketball, baseball, badminton, folk games, archery, volleyball, tennis, and ping-pong. The Jack-o-lantern Jamboree and the yellow and gold chrysanthemums gave proof of the part that the W. A. A. girls played in the homecoming celebration. The tennis tournament was one of great enthusiasm. Participation in these activities has added up points for each member toward the achievement awards given by the club. The girls not only excel in sports but also learn the practical application of first aid and home nursing. The great interest and the cooperative spirit shown by each girl has enabled W. A. A. to carry through remarkably well its plans and purposes.

COLLEGE WOMAN'S CLUB

Since 1912, when the College Woman's Club was first organized as the Mothers' Reading Circle, this group of women has promoted friendship and understanding among the faculty wives, college women teachers, and their friends.

Club meetings are arranged for each month of the school year, thus giving the members practice in various forms of self-expression such as music, talks, and book reviews.

Friendliness is promoted by means of social affairs arranged throughout the year. This year opened with a social hour welcoming four new members. In October an illustrated lecture was planned to which college students and friends were invited. This was followed by a reception attended by the club members and their guests. The social year was concluded by a banquet held in March.

Each year a special project for the improvement of the college is chosen. This year the guest rooms in Oakwood Hall and the Men's Dormitory are being decorated and made beautiful and comfortable for our visiting friends.

Throughout the year we have tried to live up to our resolve:

To keep our health!

To do our work!

To live!

To see to it we grow, and gain, and give!

What is it that we all will remember ten years from now when we think of our college life Under the Oaks? In spite of the fact that our options, term papers, and just daily assignments seem to occupy most of our time and energy, surely we will be reminded of such occasions as a certain banquet, pleasant times at the Oaks, and the gang. These are what puts that spark into our lives and makes col-

OUR GANG

The starting point of our social activities seems to be in the gang. Here we find confabs practically every day, lasting from five minutes to several hours. And what goes on during this time? What draws the group together? The love of food is one binding factor, along with like interests and opinions. But don't think there aren't some pleasant (?) arguments and heated discussions on various and sundry topics. Current campus problems and gossip, profs, religion, and the opposite sex are only a few of the things that get picked over. The gang means more than a group for bull sessions or a gossip circle. To whom do you go when in need of advice? Of course, the gang!—those six or eight closest friends, whose ideals and personalities will often be an inspiration to you.

THE OAKS

The Oaks! The dream of Manchester College students and faculty for the last several years is now a reality. Every student has done something toward contributing to this much needed grill through either cash donation or work. On January 12 the white building across the street from the administration building was initiated by allowing eager students to give their initial approval of the new rendezvous. Mrs. Lloyd Blickenstaff, general manager of the Oaks, Bill Richardson, Student manager, and Alice Ann Arnold, winner of the name contest, were there to greet the future patrons. The fountain is furnished with modern equipment; and opposite this is a room with five tables which students can use through a self-service system. The other room, which can be closed off from the rest, may be reserved for committees and clubs. The tremendous amount of business being already transacted is the best proof of the great campus need which The Oaks has fulfilled. And it's all ours!

Madeline Timmons

The Valentine celebration was held on the snowy evening of February 12. A formal, English style dinner in the dining halls, decorated for the occasion, began the activities. Afterwards the coronation and program, reigned over by Lorabel Ferverda, were staged in the auditorium. The queen's gown was white and her attendants and maids of honor were attired in red. Cupid completed the Valentine theme. The simple decorations and play of colored lights created the atmosphere for the modern television program.

The students' choice! The entire student body selected these members as their representatives of the four classes at M. C. this year. Evelyn Fisher—sophomore, registrar's office, competent and capable, engaged. Fumiko Takano—senior, Fu, honor roll, cosmopolitan, poise, vivacious. Howard Luginbill—senior, Howdy, student prexy, treasurer's office, good natured, thoughtful. Bob Brennan—freshman, class president, natural leader, musical, sense of humor. Gyneth Schindler—junior, Gynie, Valentine maid-of-honor, musician, sincere, considerate. Eugene Weaver—junior, Gene, U. Cabinet, illustrious, friendly.

David Moomaw—senior, Dave, med. student, versatile, individualistic, fun. Al Hollenberg—sophomore, class president, genial, good-humored. Marlys Blough—freshman, brilliant pianist, intelligent, original. Lorabel Ferverda—junior, Valentine queen, sweet, charming, actress. Ray Hoover—junior, class president, student minister, athlete, witty. Lorita Shull—Valentine maid-of-honor, dependable, determined, clever. These are leaders of our student body Under the Oaks.

This Aurora is dedicated to our classmates who have been called away from Manchester College to serve our country in other ways and in other places. Ordinarily we would be seeing them every day in classes, in clubs, or at social activities Under the Oaks on our campus. They are now out on the broad campus of the world. Though we cannot share their companionship now, they, along with the many memories and friends they have left, are still a part of Manchester.

SERVICE MEN

The roster of our service men is growing rapidly with the eighteen year old group ready for call and the tightening of deferments. The sons and daughters of Manchester in the service of their country are already carrying the spirit of M. C. to all corners of the world, but wherever they are, we are safe in saying that the years spent Under the Oaks has had a sustaining influence on them. They are helping to bring that peace which has been their ideal and training—a peace for which no sacrifice can be too great. Word of men who have given that “last full measure of devotion” has brought the war from a situation merely affecting our country to actual realism on our campus.

What has Manchester given to her service men; the ideals upheld by students, faculty and church, that those which create a Christian atmosphere, are worthy of being cherished always. That tangible, but indescribable Manchester spirit overcoming hardships and hatreds and discouragements, helps all. “The friendly college” has inspired tolerance and goodwill. There has been on our campus living side by side, conflicting viewpoints as to the stand to take in this universal strife. Those who feel it a dictate of their conscience to refrain from active service in the armed forces have worked with men who have been members of the reserves. Tolerance has been brought to light in the acceptance of individuals of other nationalities into our student body. No student has been ostracized; each has been accepted with warm, genuine sincerity.

Service men who have given their life have made us realize the great value of ours. We who are still in Manchester, have a life time to finish the task that they started. From those who are fighting against all possible obstacles, we are learning that we must persevere. Defeat must not mean discouragement or quitting. Hardship must not cause us to take the path of least resistance. We must follow their example of keeping high our torch of faith for a future free from the chaos of war.

Manchester men are not merely meeting the requirements of their country; they have that broader view of service—service to mankind. We find them administering relief, caring for the sick, working on rehabilitation and sanitation projects, active in educational programs and promoting international goodwill. They are looking toward the time they will return home and live and let live.

We know that our boys who have not completed their work at Manchester are yearning for the day when they can come back to the campus and resume their college work. It is for them that we must carry on and keep Manchester strong. We want them to feel our sincere interest in them whether they are serving in fox holes, in the air, on the sea, or in a camp. We want them to know that we are trying to do our part along with them in laying the foundation for a better world.

When the boys come home, as we dare believe most of them will, it will not be a question of which branch of service they were in or the nature of their assignment, because we will know already that each one did his duty as he saw it according to the dictates of his conscience under a democracy which we all appreciate. The question has been raised as to whether our country is prepared for peace, but the question we as students of Manchester College must answer is, are we ready to have the boys come back to learn how we have developed tolerance and created a constructive atmosphere of courage, hope and mutual helpfulness. We must not disappoint our boys. The boys must feel that all of the sacrifice of this war will not have been in vain. Soldiers, sailors, marines, and men in C. P. S.—Manchester pledges allegiance to that spirit which has sent you out—and to those ideals which will make you proud of us and which make us proud of you.

SERVICE MEN'S INDEX

This is as complete a list as we could obtain of those service men who have attended Manchester. The information has been obtained from the Service Men's file in Dean Holl's office, as of February, 1944. We know many names have been left out and ranks keep changing, so we are sorry we cannot be up to date, but a complete and accurate list is not available. We have tried to include not only the names, but also rank and the years in which each was here at M. C. Names in bold type indicate war casualties.

Here it is. War or no war . . . men or no men . . . the AURORA must go on!

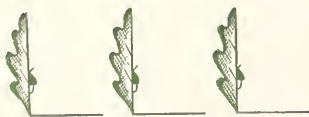

To you of the college we hope that this informal collection represents the life which you have known UNDER THE OAKS on the campus of M. C. . . . the Manchester College you know.

To the staff, thanks. It was your cooperation when the AURORA was still a nebulous mass of photographs and papers that has made this final product possible. "We dood it!"

To all the others who have aided in production, The Indianapolis Engraving Company, The Benton Review Publishing Company, Inc., The S. K. Smith cover manufacturers, the College, and our advisor Fred R. Conkling, we wish to express our sincere appreciation.

And to next year's staff, Lois Neher and the Junior Class, good luck!

—The Editor, 1944

How Many Ways Are You Conserving?

Uncle Sam wants us to make the most of what we have—to conserve manpower, transportation, fuel, and critical materials. That's why he's asking us to stop waste in the use of electricity. There is no shortage of electricity, but everytime you eliminate wasteful uses of electricity, you save the manpower, transportation, and material that go into the generation of electricity . . . and release that saved element to be used in the making of other vital war materials. Don't waste it just because it's plentiful and cheap!
